Compiler-assisted object inlining with value fields

Authors

Rodrigo Bruno, Oracle Labs, Switzerland (h-index 10)

Vojin Jovanovic, Oracle Labs, Switzerland (h-index 7)

Christian Wimmer, Oracle Labs, USA (h-index 29)

Gustavo Alonso, Systems Group, Dept. of Computer Science, ETH Zurich Switzerland (h-index 84)

Stats

Artifacts Available V1.1

Artifacts Evaluated Reusable V1.1

Artifacts Evaluated Functional V1.1

Compiler-assisted object inlining with value fields

Software and its engineering

Software notations and tools

Compilers

Runtime environments

Reading by Vladimir Zakharov 17.10.2023
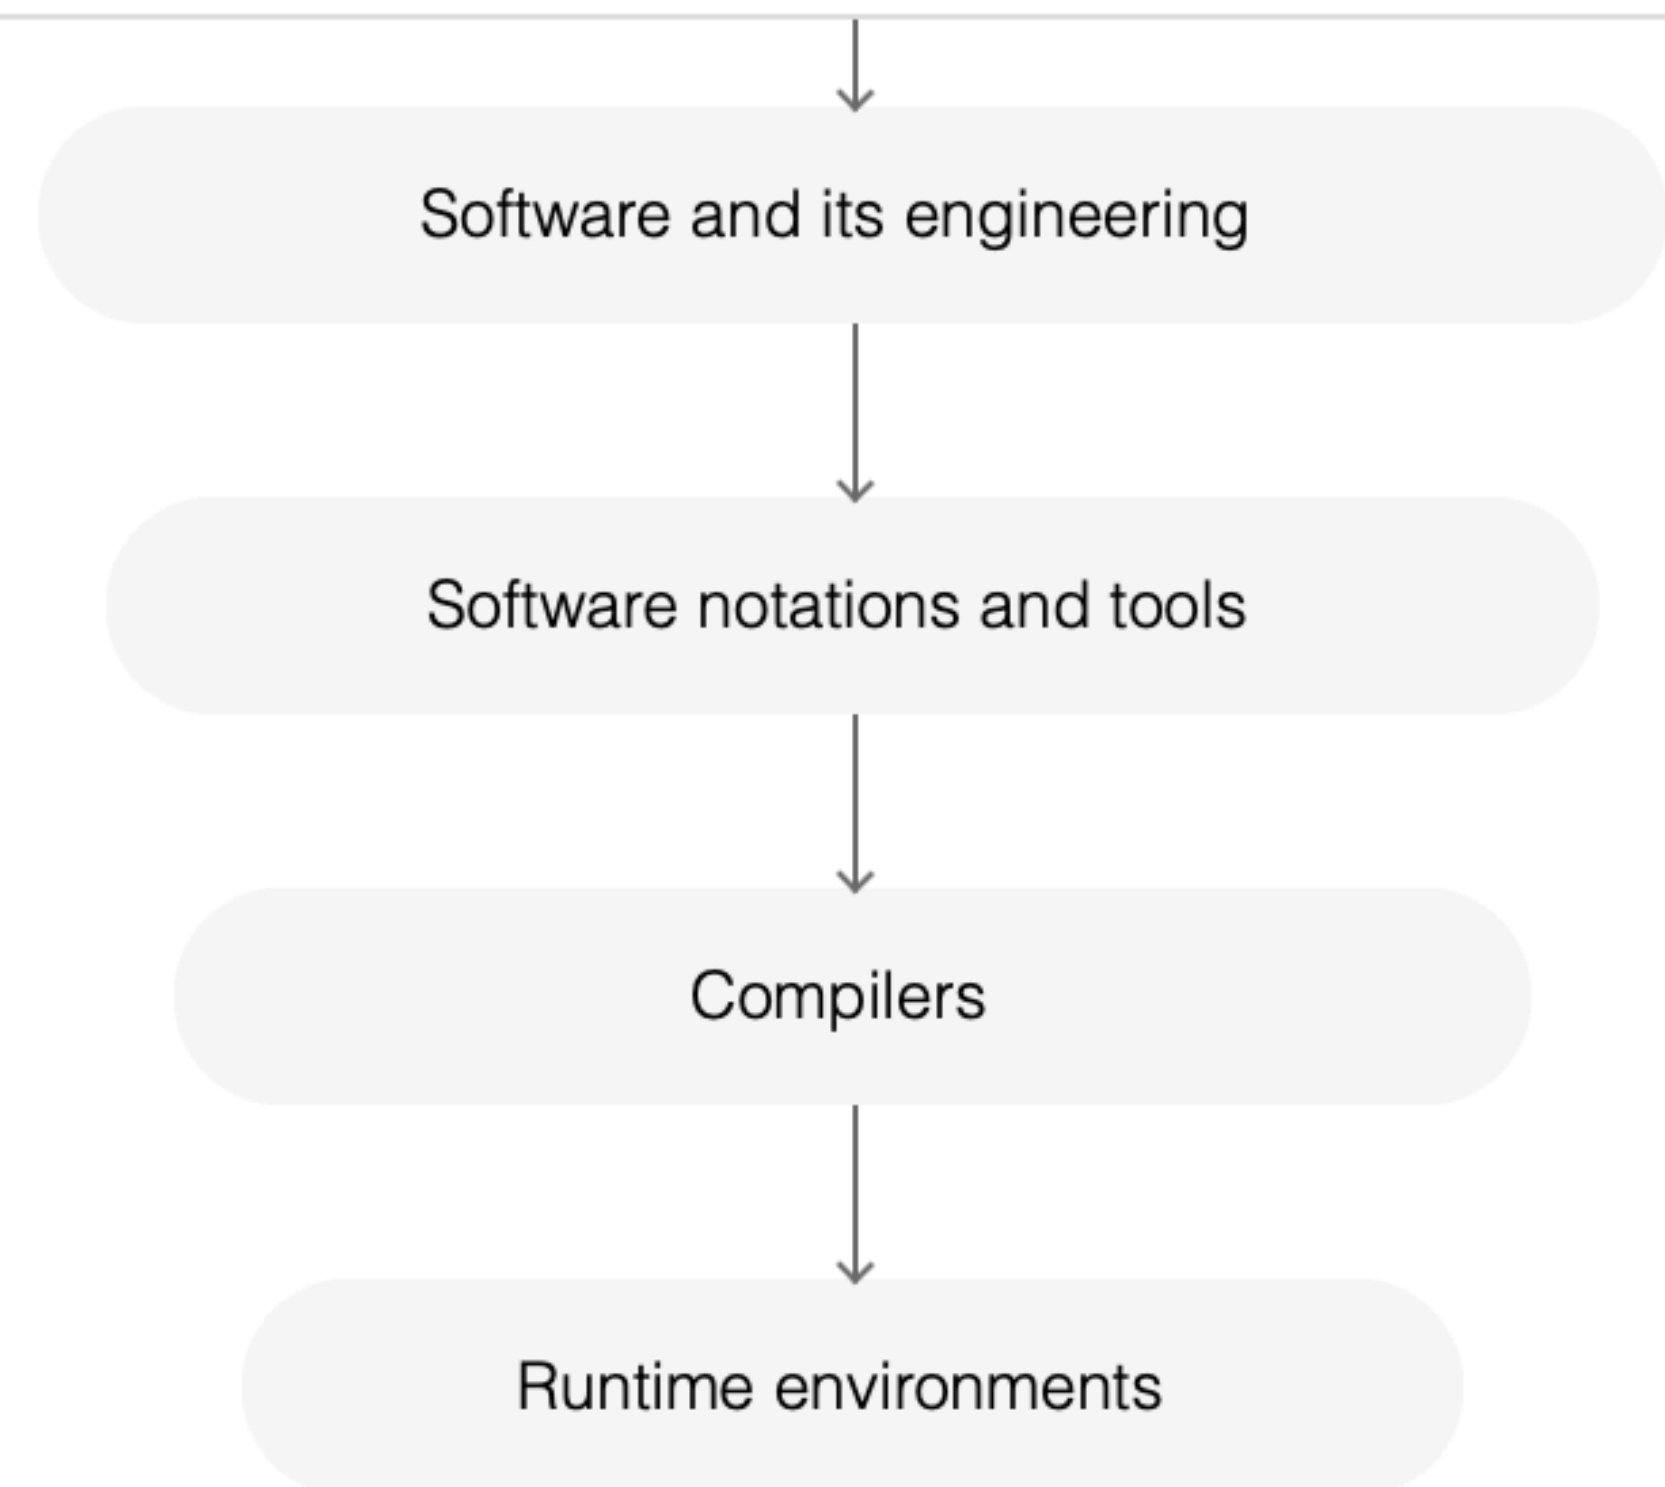

Personal Assessment

Problem Statement: 8/10

Innovation: 5/10

Contribution: 10/10

Logical Correctness: 10/10

Proof of Statements: 6/10

Readability: 8/10

Comments

Easy to read, straightforward vocabulary

Overcomplicated schemas

Lots of experiments

No data/repositories presented

Compiler-assisted annotations

Object Inlining is not a new idea

Comprehensive description of limitations

Method? Why exactly this applications in evaluation?

Using simple example through entire article